Not illustrated. 1910 Excerpt: .weirs, however, there is a diversion of water either through or around the dam, usually for the purpose of development of water power. The flow is often complicated and the records are subject to errors from such sources as leakage through the dam, backwater at high stages, uncertainty regarding coefficient, crest which is not level, obstructions from logs or ice, use of flashboards, old turbines with imperfect ratings, and many others depending on the type of development and the uses of the diverted water. In general, records of discharge at dams are usually accurate enough for practical use if no others are available. It has been the general experience of the United States Geological Survey, however, that records at current-meter gaging stations under unobstructed channel conditions are more accurate than those collected at dams, and where the conditions are reasonabty favorable are practically as good as those obtained at sharp-crested weirs. The determination of discharge over the different types of weirs and dams is treated fully in Weir experiments, coefficients, and formulas (Water-Supply Paper 200) and in the various textbooks on hydraulics. Turbine water-wheel tests and power tables (Water-Supply Paper 180) treats of the discharge through turbines when used as meters. The editions of both of these water-supply papers are practically exhausted. They can, however, be considted at most of the larger libraries of the country or they can be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C, at a cost of 20 cents for...
