Not illustrated. 1807 Excerpt: . . . still recur to home for tranquillity, we long to die in that spot which gave us birth, and in that pleasing expectationopiate every calamity. You now therefore perceive, that I have some intentions of leaving this country; and yet my designed departure fills me with reluctance and regret. Though the friendships of travellers are generally more transient than vernal snows, still I feel an uneasiness at breaking the connections I have formed since my arrival; particularly I shall have no small pain in leaving my usual companion, guide, and instructor. I shall wait for the arrival of my son before I set out. He shall be my companion in every intended journey for the future: in his company I can support the fatigues of the way with redoubled ardour, pleased at once with conveying instruction, and exacting obedience. Adieu. From Lien Clii Altangi to Fum Hoam....
